- No pet will be admitted without up to date vaccination certificates.
- Kennel cough vaccination is not a requirement but a recommendation. Kennel Cough is a highly contagious respiratory disease. Dogs commonly contract kennel cough at places where large amounts of canines congregate. Dogs can spread it to one another through airborne droplets or direct contact (e.g. touching noses). It's highly treatable in dogs using antibiotics. It has a 10 day incubation period, therefore can only be picked up 10 days after it has been contracted. A healthy adult dog will run the virus to its course, and the cough will disappear inside of two weeks, without intervention of a veterinarian. If the cough persists, a visit to the vet will supply you with a cough suppressant, or in some cases, an antibiotic course. There may be times when a veterinarian will find some other problems connected to the cough that will require different treatment. Many dogs build a resistance to Kennel Cough through exposure. To be safe, have the vaccine done 10 days before boarding. Be aware of how easily Kennel Cough is spread and don't jump to the conclusion that your chosen facility is to blame. They can be your best ally in fighting the virus. Please contact your vet for further information.
- Food is to be supplied by the owner. If food is not supplied we will charge extra accordingly.
- Prices are per night and no refunds are made should you cancel or collect your pet before the agreed departure date.
- Please make sure pets are de-wormed after their stay at the kennels. Day borders are to be de-wormed every 3 months.
